DINING IN OTHER DAYS.

The Hours of Meals and the Use Made of the Fingers.

Mr. D'Arcy Power, lecturing at the London institution on "The Meals of Our Ancestors," said the old English had three meals a day, of which the chief meal was taken when the work of the day was finished. The first meal was at 9, dinner was about 3 o'dlest and was at 9, dinner was about 3 o'clock, and supper was taken just before bedtime. The Normans dined at the old English breakfast time or a litthe later and supped at 7 p. m. In Tudor times the higher classes dined at 11 and supped at 5, but the merchants seldom took their meals before 12 and 6 o'clook. The chief meals, dinner and supper, were taken in the hall both by the old English and the Normans, for the parlor did not come into use until the reign of Elizabeth. Breakfast did not become a regular meal until quite lately, and Dr. Murray, in The Oxford Dictionary, gave 1463 as the date of the earliest quotation in which the word occurred. The meal did not be the word occurred. The meal did not be come recognized until late in the teenth century, for Pepys habitually took his draft of half a pint of Rhenish wine or a dram of strong waters in place of a morning meal. Dinner was always the great meal of the day, and from the accession of Henry IV to the death of Queen Elizabeth the dinners were as sumptuous and extravagant as any of those now

Carving was then a fine art. Each guest brought his own knife and spoon, for the small fork was not introduced into Engsmall fork was not increase of Odcombe land until Thomas Coryate of Odcombe published his "Crudities" in 1611. Pepys published his "Crudities" with him to the took his spoon and fork with him to the lord mayor's feast in 1663. The absence of forks led to much stress being laid upon the act of washing the hands both before and after meals and to the rule that the left hand alone should be dipped into the common dish, the right hand being occu pied with the knife

The perfect dinner at the best time of The perfect dinner at the best time of English cookery consisted of three courses, each complete in itself, and terminated by a subtlety or device, the whole being rounded off with Ypocras, after which the guests retired into another room, where pastry, sweetmeats and fruit were served with the choicer wines. with the choicer wines. The English were essentially meat eaters, and it was not un-til the time of the commonwealth that pudding attained its extraordinary popularity. Indeed the first mention of pudding in the menus of the "Buckfeast" at St. Bartholomew's hospital did not occur until 1710, and in 1712 is an item of 5 until 1710, and in 1712 is an item of 5 shillings for ice.—London Times.

Discovery of the Culture Method.

While studying the disease known as fowl cholera, Pasteur having shortly be-fore discovered the particular organism as sociated with this malady, he was one day unable to obtain a recent or vigorous cul-tivation of this microbe, and, wishing to communicate the disease to another fowl he took "faute de mieux," a culture which was old and exhausted. But the fowl inoculated with this enfeebled growth of the microbe, instead of dying, survived the injection, and, moreover, appeared from this time onward to be possessed of some strange and inexplicable charm which rendered it proof against all infection from this disease, for it was able to resist subsequent inoculations with the most virulent and active fewl cholera microbes. Pasteur, convinced that this was no accident, but that he was here face to face with a great and important problem, which, if he could only unravel, might be-come of immense utility, repeated this chance experiment under numerous differ chance experiment under numerous universent conditions, with the result, now so well known to all, that in his hands the microbe which hitherto had only proved a malignant fee was constrained to become malignant foe was constrained to become the beneficent protector of the animal into which it was inoculated.

The study of attenuated viruses and vaccines was now vigorously pursued, but so unprepared was the scientific world for this great step that even Robert Koch, at the international medical congress in London, is stated to have exclaimed when, 1881, Pasteur brought forward his bril-liant discovery, "Es ist zu gut um wahr zu sein!"—Longman's Magazine.

Ventriloquism In the Bible.

Ventriloquism, which is described as "speaking from the belly," has its first historic mention, as far as we are aware, in Isatah xxix, 4, "And thou shalt be brought down and shall speak out of the ground, and thy speech shall be low out of the dust, and thy voice shall be as one that hath a familiar spirit, out of the ground, and thy speech shall whisper out of the dust."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Changed Conditions.

"This business ain't what it used to be," wailed the fortune teller.

"So?" responded the clairvoyant.
"No, indeed. It has got to be now so that you can't tell whether a young that you can't tell whether a specific wants went to predict that she will woman wants you to predict that she will marry a rich husband or that she will be president of the United States."—Indianapolis Journal.

Light of the Underground Trolley Wires. The blue sparks and fire seen along an overhead trolley wire when a car is passing are familiar, but on an underground wire they look strange. The passenger on the Lenox avenue extension of the Broadway cable road who stands on the rear platform of a car at night and looks back will see now and then through the slot broken stretches of pale blue light along the wire underneath, and seen thus it is

New York Stock Market New York, March 20.—To-day's stock market was in main uninteresting if not tedious. The record of transactions fell considerably below even the alim total of the previous day, and the fluctuations as a rule reflected the backing and filling of the board room scalpers. There was very little news bearing upon the prices. American Tobacco was again prices. American Tobacco was again the leader in point of activity. Considerable attention, owing to reports of a meeting to be held at St. Louis with the orjectoteffecting a compromise between the representatives of the American Company and its powerful competitors. In well informed circles there was but alight expectations. slight expectation of any serious result to be had from the meeting. The traders, however, rushed the price up to two per cent. to 83%, at about which figure the stock closed. Closing stocks were as follows:
